Friends.

News From St. Philips.

We are having a lot of windy cool weather and we hope it will soon make a change and we will have the warm spring weather.

The grain crop is looking very sorry in this section. Some of our farmers have already gotten a very good stand of cotton.

The St. Philips Luther League will give a public meeting Sunday, May 7, exercises beginning promptly at 10 o'clock and there will be some addresses made in the afternoon. The public is cordially invited. Come one, come all and bring well filled baskets.

We had services in our new church last Saturday for the first time. Dr. Bowers preached fine sermons last Saturday and Sunday and it takes him to preach one of them good old sermons. There can't many speakers beat him.

St. Philips school closed April 28. There is no reason why St. Philips school should not be a proper one. It has made fine progress this session under the management of Misses Ola and Vinnie Browne. The distance from the school extends three miles each way. The number of girls up to fourteen is seventy-nine; the number of boys up to the same age is seventy-two; the number of girls that have permanent homes is seventy; the boys sixty-five. There is no reason why we shouldn't have an up-to-date school. That is a short distance to send children for a good education.

Mrs. W. F. Ruff has recovered from a bad case of gripe and is getting along nicely. Mr. and Mrs. Homer Kinard spent Sunday with Mr. G. W. Shealy and family. Mr. Robert Shealy and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Kibler. Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Summer spent Sunday with Mr. Rufus Metts and family. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gallman spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Gallman.

Will close for this time with best wishes to The Herald and News.

MR. MCCOMBS WILL RETIRE

Lynch Will Probably Manage Wilson's Campaign.

Washington, April 24.—Choice of the map who will manage President Wilson's campaign for reelection becoming chairman of the democratic national committee to succeed Wm. F. McCombs, who notified the president today that he would retire after the St. Louis convention, lies between Fred B. Lynch, national committee man from Minnesota and Homer S. Cummings, of Connecticut, vice chairman of the committee. It is regarded as more than probable that the task will fall to Mr. Lynch, now chairman of the national committee's executive committee and in charge of the preliminary record for the coming convention.

Mr. McCombs' decision that his personal affairs demanded that he give up the chairmanship after five years of active service was communicated to the president in a letter which was made public today with the president's reply.

MASKED TUAREGS

Ruthless Buccaneers of the Middle Sahara Desert.

AT WAR WITH ALL MANKIND.

These Nomads of the Trackless Sands of Northern Africa Levy Tribute Upon All Caravans They Meet and Live in Mystery and Exclusiveness.

"In northern Africa there lies a trackless country, inhabited by a people, the masked Tuaregs, fascinating for the mystery and exclusiveness with which they have surrounded their life. These people, natives and rulers of the middle desert, are the allies of no one, but wage a furtive guerrilla warfare with all who invade the inhospitable Sahara sands of their domain. They are the buccaneers of the trackless sand, forever at war with all civilization and its restraints," says an article issued by the National Geographic society at Washington, which describes the people always willing to fight for the maintenance of their power to levy tribute upon the ancient transsaharan caravan routes.

"Masked Tuaregs are Berber nomads, a white desert people, whose country is probably the most inaccessible on earth. Even before Egyptian civilization began to leave coherent records of its history the Tuaregs, or Berbers, were long established along northern Africa. The great Arab invasion of the eleventh century displaced them from their possessions upon the seacoast and drove them into the savage area of the interior desert, where, with their hands raised against all who came into their pathless country, they have maintained themselves through the intervening centuries despite lack of water, sandstorms and lack of farming land, requisitioning by force of arms from the Arabs and Egyptians, to the north and east, and from the blacks of the Sudan, in the south, such necessities and luxuries as their cheerless portion of Mother Earth cannot supply them.

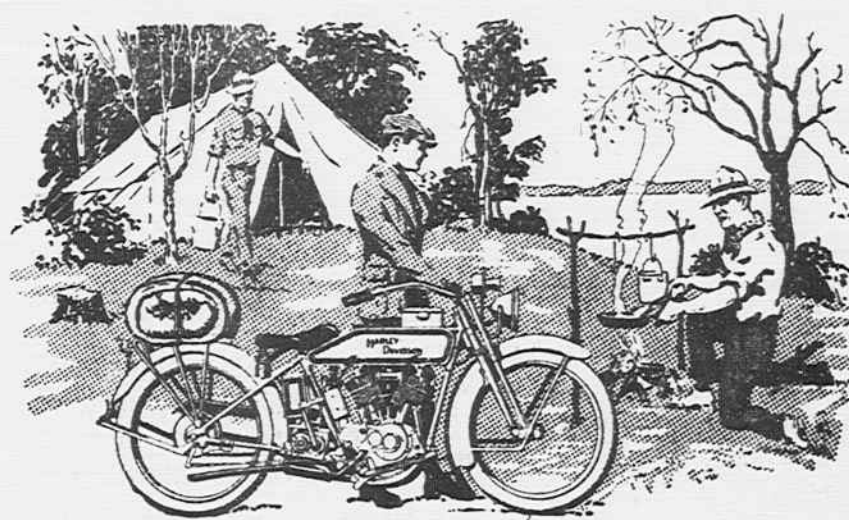

"There are five main tribes in the Tuareg confederation, and they inhabit the desert from Tuat to Timbuktu and from Fezzan to Zinder. Their homes are reared in the heart of arid wastes, where vast solitudes, unnatural heats and unmarked distances shroud everything in uncanny mystery. They are masters of an area half that of the United States in extent. Of this 1,500,000 square miles of territory scarcely 3,000 acres, or less than the area of New York city, is cultivated land. This scanty farm land is only maintained by an enduring struggle with the drifting sands. These fierce adventurers who have forced the great desolation to yield them a support number 300,000 or more, according to estimate, and they have made themselves feared by the natives from the Mediterranean to the jungles of central Africa.

"The Tuaregs wear the end of their turban cloth drawn around the face, allowing nothing but the eyes to be seen. It is worn for the purpose of protecting the throat and lungs from the cutting blasts of fine desert sand and also probably as an element enhancing the mystery of their life, for they seldom or never remove these masks, whether roving over the desert or visiting in the cities on the coast. Due to these cloths they are called masked Tuaregs, while the Arabs call them 'people of the veil.' The masks are dark blue and white, the former being worn by Tuareg nobles and the latter by the serfs and slaves.

"Some centers for trade, Tuareg towns, are situated in the middle desert. These are Wargla, Timbuktu, Ghat, Ghadamess, Murzuk and In Salah. However, the Tuareg has little care for trade and industry. He is a fearless, enduring, hard fighting adventurer along the merchandise trails that cross the desert. Two important trails leave Tripoli, on the coast, and traverse 3,000 miles of sands and barren wastes to the Sudan, where rich cargoes of skins, gold, ivory and other interior African products are loaded upon camels and brought northward. Sometimes a single caravan consists of thousands of camels and merchandise to the value of hundreds of thousands of dollars. When passing through the Tuareg country the leaders of such caravans have had to pay a tribute to the chieftains by the way for safe escort or run the risk of losing all their goods.

"From Morocco to Tripoli the relentless ferocity, the cunning and the daring of the Tuaregs are mingled in all the traditions unpleasant to the more peaceful natives along the coast. The Tuaregs meanwhile openly spy upon the caravans in course of outfitting in the coast cities and thrive upon the tribute they are able to exact.

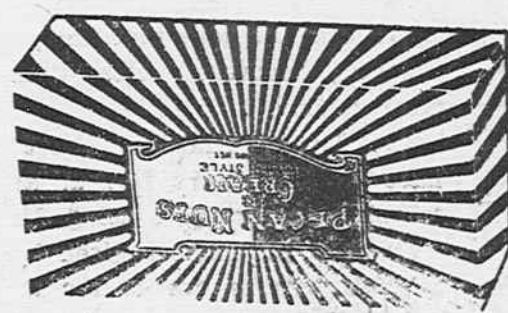

"The Tuaregs are of the purest Berber stock, the noble families unmixed with other blood, and in their own language they call themselves 'the noble people.' Nominally they are Mohammedans, and some of their number compose the most intolerant and warlike sect in Islam, the Senussite sect. Their hatred for the foreigner is greater even than that bred by their religion, and so they are more exclusive than ever were the Chinese or Japanese. Their social organization divides them into five classes—the nobles, the priests, the serfs, the cross breeds and the slaves. All of these classes have this in common—they form together the Tuareg family, which holds itself superior to all the other peoples of the earth."
